WisdomTree Physical Cardano

WisdomTree Physical Cardano ETP (exchange-traded product) provides investors with a simple, secure and cost-efficient way to gain exposure to the price of Cardano (ADA), the coin used on the Cardano blockchain.

Investing in Cardano via an exchange-traded product allows investors to utilise the best of traditional financial infrastructure and product structuring. The ETP allows investors to access Cardano without the need to hold the crypto assets directly, store private access keys or interact with the blockchain and crypto infrastructure in any way.

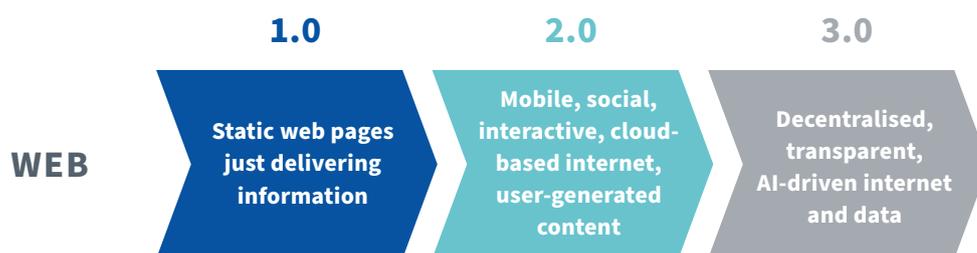

Cardano: a decentralised software platform

Cardano was created in 2015 by technologists Charles Hoskinson and Jeremy Wood, both early contributors to Ethereum. One of a number of competing layer-1 smart contract blockchain networks, Cardano enables owners of its ADA crypto asset to operate its network and vote on changes to its software rules. Likewise, developers can use the Cardano blockchain for features including running custom programming logic (smart contracts), which allow for the development of decentralised applications.

Cardano differentiates itself from the other projects by emphasising its peer-reviewed, research-driven approach to design, which aims to achieve an academic rigour it believes will propel the eventual adoption of its technology.

Why invest in Cardano?

The future of the internet: Some investors think that there is likely to be a next phase of the internet revolution (sometimes termed Web3) and that blockchain networks like Cardano will form part of this evolution. If Cardano remains one of the main contenders in this nascent revolution, its coin value should ultimately be tied to the success of this platform and the ecosystem built on it.

Diversifying crypto allocation: Most institutional investors who have a crypto allocation are concentrated in bitcoin, and increasingly in ether. Cardano offers an alternative layer-1 decentralised software platform, with different technical features to Ethereum.

For example, Cardano uses proof-of-stake as its consensus mechanism, a system some deem more scalable and sustainable than the proof-of-work mechanism used by Bitcoin and Ethereum¹. Similar to bitcoin, the supply of Cardano is capped though at a higher limit of 45 billion tokens. Its value should eventually be dictated by its supply-demand dynamics, mainly driven by the demand for the Cardano platform.

Cardano in an ETP with WisdomTree

Investors look to the ETP structure to provide additional protection for their investments:

Security – Safely storing digital assets is not only about protecting against hacks, but also protecting against the inadvertent loss of private keys. Investing in digital assets through an ETP structure could allow investors to transfer the expensive and time-consuming burden of managing private keys to the issuer and to benefit from institutional-grade safeguarding of assets in cold storage.

Transparency – Transparency is a core component of the ETP structure. A digital assets ETP could offer a core measure of confidence for investors by enabling access to an audited website from the issuer, showing exactly how many coins are represented by the outstanding fund shares. This is already standard practice in physical gold ETP structures and provides an incomparable measure of transparency for investors.

ETP Standardisation – Product standardisation is an aspect of the ETP wrapper that could benefit investors in digital assets. Trading, holding and accounting for investments in ETPs are well established and the provision of crypto exposure in this format could allow such investments to fit within an investor’s existing systems, processes and risk management. Additionally, providing crypto exposure in an ETP could deliver benefits from standard market features that many investors rely on. Centralised clearing, an exchange listing on a recognised venue and standard settlement practices all lower the operational and counterparty risk of making investments.

Liquidity – ETPs tend to bring a centralisation of liquidity to asset classes. This could be especially impactful in the crypto space as the current ecosystem is quite fragmented, with trading happening across many venues with no common settlement infrastructure. An investor would need to separately establish connectivity to several venues in order to access their liquidity. Investment in an ETP essentially outsources this responsibility to specialist market makers, with trading infrastructure to manage many exchange connections.
