WisdomTree Renewable Energy UCITS ETF

The WisdomTree Renewable Energy UCITS ETF allows investors to capture the energy transition megatrend by accessing the diversified and rapidly emerging renewable energy value chain.

The transition away from fossil fuels towards more sustainable energy sources is our best chance of tackling climate change. Renewable energy is at the heart of this endeavour and is supported by a broad value chain which is seeing incumbent technologies like wind and solar achieving economies of scale and emerging technologies like hydrogen becoming promising additions to the energy mix.

The key drivers of growth in renewable energy are:

Regulatory support: Governments and corporates are swiftly adopting the goal of net zero by 2050 and recognising renewable energy as a fundamental tool for getting there.

Energy security: Since the war in Ukraine, energy security has become synonymous with the energy transition encouraging countries to reduce their dependence on fossil fuel imports.

Technology cost change: Wind and solar power have seen significant cost reductions over the last decade, a trend which is expected to continue making renewable energy increasingly cost-competitive.

The WisdomTree Renewable Energy UCITS ETF defines the renewable energy value chain as follows:

Raw materials: Suppliers of key raw materials including commodities like steel, copper, and aluminium.

Manufacturing: Manufacturers of modules such as polysilicon for solar panels, blades and towers for wind turbines, and high voltage cables for power transmission networks.

Enablers: The building blocks of effectively operating a renewable energy grid including battery energy storage systems, renewables operations and maintenance, and recycling.

Application: Companies generating renewable power, operating networks and developing new projects to add additional capacity.

Emerging technologies: Companies innovating in new renewable energy technologies like floating wind and solar, solid-state batteries, and hydrogen electrolyzers.

Index methodology highlight – the intensity rating

The WisdomTree Renewable Energy UCITS ETF tracks the WisdomTree Renewable Energy Index. The index can invest in up to 32 different subsectors across the five categories of the value chain described above.

Each company's inclusion and weighting in the index depends on its 'intensity rating'. The intensity rating is calculated by multiplying the sub-sector score and the revenue score:

The index tilts towards pure-play companies based on their revenue exposure to the theme and is rebalanced twice a year.

These companies are then subjected to the ESG screening criteria defined within the WisdomTree ESG framework. For information on the WisdomTree approach to Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG), visit our responsible investing page.

The WisdomTree Renewable Energy UCITS ETF is classified as an Article 9 fund under Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation (SFDR) as it has the sustainable objective of investing in companies involved in the renewable energy value chain which contributes to the environmental objective of climate change mitigation. The index is designed to evolve with rapidly developing technology and the decarbonisation solutions being leveraged to achieve net zero emissions by 2050. The Exchange Traded Fund (ETF) also observes indicators linked to individual United Nations Sustainable Development Goals of Climate Action and Clean and Affordable Energy to measure the attainment of the environmental objective of climate change mitigation. For more information on the minimum proportion of sustainable investments in the Fund, please consult the Fund's Supplement.
